Description:

In her hilarious, action-packed debut, Bethany Maines introduced sleuth Nikki Lanier and melded the best of Charlies Angels, Alias, and Janet Evanovich in a smart, ultra-modern spy spoof. Still reeling from the break up with CIA agent Zev Coralles, Nikki is tracking a Basque anarchist who may be planning to kill fellow Carrie Mae operative Camille Masters. Nikkis search leads her to Camilles son, bad-boy pop star Kit Masters, whos traveling to Paris on tour. When Nikki receives a picture of Zev with another woman, Kit is happy to help mend her broken heart, but first they have to fend off masked gunmen and get Kit safely to his New Years Eve concert. When internal conflict within Carrie Mae gets her fired from the mission, Nikki defies orders and recruits her friends to help solve the case. But staying alive long enough to do it--and untangle her increasingly messy love life--will be the hardest thing Nikkis ever done.

Bethany does it again, but with more romance, more action and plenty of humor. Compact continues the story of Nikki Lanier and her adventures as Carrie Maes finest agent. This time around she finds herself in Paris and in and out of love. The book is a fun read and a great continuation of her first book Bulletproof Mascara. Bethany does a great job integrating action (and describing action like you actually there) and humor. She develops her characters to be very likeable (even if they are the bad guy). Bethany also describes her settings well and makes you want to travel to the exotic places she sets her characters in. This is a good book for both men and women and for ages late teen and up. I look forward to the continued series and to her further writing adventures!
